CLASH BETWEEN ADMINISTRATION AND CRITICS SEEN

Congress Asked To Appropriate $850,000,000 for the R. F. C.

CONSIDER IT TODAY

Bloc Lined Up in House To Force Restoration of Old
Pay Rates

By William K. Hutchinson
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(INS)—A clash between the administration and its critics loomed today as Congress was asked to appropriate $850,000,000 for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation but to reenact slashes in allowances for veterans and pay for government employees.

The RFC appropriation was written into a bill, approved by the Senate banking and currency committee. It will be considered during the day by the House banking and currency committee.

The old economy program was re-incorporated in the independent offices appropriation bill, just reported in the House. The economies, which provoked a bitter battle in the Senate last summer, were relaxed only to the extent of reducing the pay cut for Federal employees from 15 to 10 per cent of their old salaries.

The battle will start in the House, where a bloc has lined up to force restoration of the old pay rates. The Administration undoubtedly will win, in view of the demand for economy since President Roosevelt revealed a $7,300,000,000 deficit for the current fiscal year.

This economy move will die about the time Congress acts on the RFC bill for $850,000,000. This measure will extend the life of the corporation until Feb. 1, 1935. This was the compromise, approved by the Senate committee, after Jesse L. Jones, RFC chairman, asked for $1,000,000,000 and a three-year extension.

Jones revealed the corporation needs $815,000,000 to carry on the recovery program. An additional $35,000,000 was written into the bill to give the RFC a little cash on hand.

Jones explained the funds were needed for these purposes:

$500,000,000 to open banks and re-lease frozen deposits.

$75,000,000 for mortgage companies to aid little businesses.

$75,000,000 each for railroads and to finance agricultural exports.

$33,000,000 for drainage districts.

$30,000,000 for regional agricultural credit corporations.

$10,000,000 for building and loan associations, which could not qualify under the home loan bank board's terms.

$10,000,000 for insurance companies.

$5,000,000 to liquidate joint stock land banks, and

$1,000,000 each for private agriculture and livestock credit corporations.

The Senate meanwhile took up the Federal liquor tax bill. It was expected to pass promptly, with a $2.00 per gallon tax on distilled spirits. Administration leaders rushed it to enactment because the government needs the revenue.

Brown admitted his personal correspondence was destroyed, adding "all official correspondence in my files was left intact at the end of my tenure of office."

EXECUTE MARINUS VAN DER LUBBE

Leipzig, Germany, Jan. 10.—Moving so suddenly as to take even high government officials by surprise, the Hitler government today executed Marinus Van Der Lubbe, young Dutch radical, convicted of setting fire to the Reichstag Building. Van Der Lubbe was beheaded by the guillotine in the yard of the Leipzig Superior Court. Great secrecy surrounded the execution and there had been no advance warning of the young Dutch brick-master's immediate doom. The guillotine was employed instead of the all-throated hanging or the orthodox Nazi axe-man because it is the legal method of execution in the Province of Saxony, in which Leipzig lies.

CWA Worker Sinks Deep Into Quicksand at Burlington

BURLINGTON, Jan. 10.—Sinking nearly to his shoulders in quicksand, Frank Baum, 49 years old, of this city, had a narrow escape from death today while working on a Civil Works Administration project here. Four fellow employees rescued him from the treacherous sand.

Baum, one of about 50 men engaged in building bulkheads and doing other work at the Burlington sewage plant, was working in a trench near the point where the city ditch empties into the Delaware River when he began to sink in the quicksand.

For a time the trapped man struggled to extricate himself, but finding himself sinking steadily he shouted for help and the other four men went to his assistance. After some difficulty they managed to pull Baum out, but his boots still remain in the sand.

Baum, none the worse for his experience, rested for a time and then returned to work. Officials say the men had been warned of the quicksand peril before they started work at the plant.

IT BROUGHT RESULTS

Four years ago when the Department of Public Safety was organized under the superintendency of James L. McGee, a prediction was made that the fire losses in Bristol borough would be reduced.

That prediction has come true. In 1929 when the Bureau of Fire Prevention was inaugurated here by borough council and Mr. McGee put in charge, it was announced that commercial and business places would be inspected four times yearly and that two inspections a year would be made of the residential sections. These inspections were to be made with the idea that by careful supervision fire hazards would be put out of existence and that many of the fires occurring here, in the past, had been attributed to carelessness on the part of individuals in permitting rubbish and debris to accumulate.

It was also found that often times in a thoughtless manner and with no deliberate intent to create such, that fire hazards were brought into being, by the remodeling of structures.

The first step with the inauguration of the bureau of fire prevention was to make a survey of every building in the borough. After this survey had been completed, a complete record was made out for each, with a complete description of the property.

These records were then carefully gone over by Superintendent McGee, who had in the meantime read many articles on fire prevention and liberally educated himself, so that he could quickly detect when a fire hazard existed. If such a hazard was found the owner of the property was at once notified of its existence and requested to remove the same. After a reasonable length of time elapsed, a re-inspection of the property was made, to see if the recommendations had been complied with. If not, then a formal notice was sent and a check-up made to see that the orders were obeyed.

At first some property owners thought their rights were being encroached upon but after an explanation they saw the wisdom of the move and readily consented. Now the "property owners are showing a fine spirit of co-operation to eliminate fire hazards," states the report of Superintendent McGee.

It is now planned to survey every residence here in the basement and first floor for the number of electrical outlets and the location of household electrical appliances. This is to further aid in the prevention of fires and to protect firemen entering buildings during fires.

Bristol's fire loss in 1933 was cut down to a total of $5,630.

Credit must also be given to the members of the Bristol Consolidated Fire Department, who by their promptness and efficiency have contributed in no small way to keeping the fire loss down to a minimum.

Comparison of fire losses in Bristol since 1928 shows a downward trend, and proves that inspection has paid for itself many times. These figures are:

1932, $5,060; 1931, $5,205; 1930, $13,070; 1929, $10,870; 1928, $19,096.50.

After four years of building Colleen Moore's dollhouse, with its tiny furnishings from all over the world, is nearing completion, and the star will send it on an exhibition tour to raise money for children's hospitals.

This 11-room miniature house, a wish-fulfillment of Kathleen Morrison, the child, and long a hobby of Colleen Moore, the woman, is elaborate beyond the dreams of the average youngster.

On the walls of each room, some famous painter will do a mural illustrating a fairy tale.

Furniture and household equipment have been gathered from France, England, Germany, Hungary and from all over this country. For months, friendly members of the New York Police pawnshop detail have had Colleen's private telephone number and address. They wire her when they run across any article they think she might be able to use. Buyers of department stores keep their eyes open for the star when they make their trips abroad.

Hollywood friends also have contributed many things to the house.

Bebe Daniels gave Colleen a set of beautiful glassware. From Lilian Tashman came a silver service in miniature. Some of the utensils are in solid gold. And Tony Moreno bought one of the smallest bibles in the world for the house.

The tiny doll princess who occupies the palace was carved in ivory by Manchurian experts. She wears a platinum crown. Every prong of it is tipped with a pearl and the star in the center flashes a diamond.

While Colleen has been working on "Success Story" at RKO she hasn't had much time for her hobby. But she will finish the house this year and will send it out on its mission of charity.

Barbara Stanwyck moved her things into Ruth Chatterton's bungalow—the only bungalow on the Warner lot—and thus apparently to the top-spot among the studio's feminine stars. If Barbara felt any triumph she concealed it. Yet satisfaction she must have felt because there has been a long-standing coolness between her and Ruth Chatterton. The reason? Well, it goes back to New York and there is no use dragging it up here.

And, lest any of you readers have a long memory, yes there originally were two bungalow dressing rooms on the lot—one for Colleen Moore and one for Corinne Griffith. But the second is now a steam-room and bathroom for studio officials.

It wasn't until the big rainstorm was over that Dolores del Rio got her worst fright. She was just entering her Santa Monica canyon home—it was late at night—when there came a series of crashes that shook the building. When the star and her household staff recovered sufficiently from the shock they discovered that three tall pines, transplanted by the landscape gardener, had come to earth. One had torn off part of a balcony and broken a number of windows.

QUICK GLIMPSES:

The chap Sally Rand has been visiting so often at the Hollywood Hospital is Charles Mann, one of her business representatives. He has had a major operation. . . . Now Christine Lee and Ricardo Cortez have postponed their wedding until he does another picture, "Hit Me Again." . . . Spencer Tracy, who usually hits the late spots, is bragging that he took Loretta Young to a picture show and went home at 9:40 P. M. . . . An old injury, suffered when she fell from a horse several months ago, is bothering Alice White and she may go to the hospital for an operation. . . . Clarence Brown dug into his jeans to buy Alice Joyce a big square cut diamond. . . . The storm almost marooned Mary Carlisle. Her car was the last one the Rangers allowed over the ridge route. . . . Hollywood's new brewery boasts a fountain that runs beer. . . . And Mae Clarke's new pearl ring, which some people are wondering about, is a present from Fanny Brice.

DID YOU KNOW— That Henrietta Crossman is so opposed to the slaughter of animals that she won't eat meat or wear furs?

Perfidious Savages

IN THE Torres Straits Islands in the East Indies, there are no trees suitable for canoe building. So the natives, a cruel, treacherous race, import their canoes from the Fly River Delta in New Guinea—another place with an unenviable reputation. The distance between these two places is over four hundred miles, and no native in that region travels even one-quarter that distance.

When a canoe is wanted, the word is simply passed on from tribe to tribe. On the strength of this vague order a canoe is built. Then it is relayed back. Each tribe of bloodthirsty cannibals tests and discusses it before passing it on. Finally the payment, shell necklaces, spear points, arm bands, makes its way to the canoe builders in the same leisurely fashion.

There is reason for this honesty in savages to whom perfidy is natural. If any of the parties in this complicated transaction were to risk being dishonest, their credit would be ruined. And though these natives may kill and eat each other, they hold barter inviolate.

Even savages understand that in commerce it pays to be honest, and to let the world realize your honesty! So in modern business. Advertising must be honest. It is a proof of honesty. A product's advertising is the best guarantee of its quality, usefulness and value.

The man who advertises is inviting your inspection. He is letting his goods stand on their own merit. He can't afford to deceive you. You can depend on him. That's why it pays to read advertising and to buy advertised goods.

Any one can spend money — the reader of advertisements spends wisely

"You look like the Empress Josephine. It's the color that does it," he mused.

be all over town that we weren't invited!"

"Why can't you go without me?" "Because I won't, that's why. Buy yourself a new frock. We're stepping out on the third."

Patricia bought herself a new gown, a gown of deepest blue. The earnest little salesgirl assured her that the color was new, was being taken up by the smartest women.

"Not everybody can wear it," the salesgirl said, "but on you it's marvelous. It's just right for your hair."

"It does look rather well, doesn't it?" said Patricia indifferently, turning to observe her reflection in the mirror. "Isn't it just a little tight?"

"Not for your figure. You're slim as a wand. Do you diet?" "No," replied Patricia, smiling. "I eat like a horse."

"You're lucky." "Will the dress be ready on the second of the month? I plan to wear it on the third."

"Indeed it will." As Patricia stepped back into her trim little suit and adjusted her fur, the salesgirl carefully folded the soft, luscious satin and said: "We feel quite honored that you came to us, that you plan to wear the blue to the March ball."

"I do." This time the other girl did not say, "You're lucky." But the words were written in her eyes. Strange to be envied, thought Patricia, walking from the dim gloom of the shop into the luxurious afternoon.

The other girl, the girl in the plain black dress had envied her for more than her figure. She had envied Patricia her delicious leisure, her position, her money, her ability to buy a frock without asking the price. She had wistfully imagined a world where men in dinner clothes took girls to the theatre, not to movies, a world of swift moving cars and glamorous evenings, a world that was all luxury and all pleasure. Patricia knew that feeling.

"It's funny," she said aloud. The night of the March ball came. The new frock had arrived. Even to herself Patricia looked unwontedly well, tall, stately in the slim, severe and flowing lines. Julian commented on it as she drifted down the stairs. He said with frank admiration:

"You look like the Empress Josephine. It's the color that does it," he mused. "It's a strange color, so dark a blue for evening."

"The girl at Murchinson's," Patricia remembered with a faint smile, "assured me that this particular shade was high fashion. It seems the smartest woman are wearing it."

"You're more than smart, you're stunning." "I'm glad," said Patricia dryly. "I'd like to be a credit to the March ball."

The night was dark, a little chilly. There was a hint of fall in the air. After all it was September. Patricia rejoiced that summer was almost over. It had been an endless summer.

On the chauffeur, stood at the curb. He opened and slammed the door; they were off to Long Island. The Marches had not opened their town house. Julian crumpled at the length of the drive.

"Martha might just as well, might better have given her brawl in town. That girl has got to be different. I wonder she didn't decide on Chicago and request her guests to drive."

"I don't mind," said Patricia. "If we never arrived it would be soon enough for me."

"Don't tell me you're nervous." "Not at all," she informed him in temperate tones. "But you know how I feel about this expedition."

"I asked him then a question that for days had gnawed at her heart. "Do you think Clark will be at the ball?"

"Certainly not," replied Julian, in honest surprise. "It's all off between those two. Martha told me last week that she hadn't seen Clark for months."

"Martha said that!" Patricia gave an odd, little laugh.

SMART COSTUMES AT RITZ IN PARIS ARE ATTRACTIVE, CLEVER

By Nadia De Beaud

(U. S. Fashion Correspondent)

PARIS—(INS)—Parties at the Ritz have been very smart the last few days. Sir Charles Mendel, whose wife was the former Elsie de Wolfe, was host at a recent party. His guests included Mrs. Cole Porter, the famous beauty, whose elegance can only be equalled by her graciousness. Her gown, a Molyneux model, was in navy blue moire with touches of ivory satin at the waist. She wore with it a cape of similar material.

These cape effects are especially popular this season, some models having capelet effects on them, such as another Molyneux gown I saw on Mrs. John Marriott, daughter of Mr. Otto Kahn. It was in royal blue muslin de sole with the capelet falling low over the arms, leaving the shoulders bare.

RECIPES

CAKE FROSTINGS WITH VARIETY

A frosting can make or mar the lightest, most perfect cake ever made. And many of us, secretly, eat our cake for the frosting if it's piled high and has a smooth, delicious texture and flavoring. So try some of these new things on your favorite cake recipes to give them interest and different flavor.

Of course, uncooked frostings are the easiest to prepare and of these butter frosting takes the lead for simplicity and deliciousness. Here is the foundation recipe that may be varied according to your taste and ingenuity.

Butter Frosting

3 tablespoons of butter,

About 3 cups of confectioners' sugar,
1 teaspoon salt
3 or 4 tablespoons of liquid flavoring,
1 egg yolk.

Cream the butter in the mixing bowl and gradually cream in the sugar. When about half the sugar has been used add the egg yolk and beat until the mixture is fluffy. Add the rest of the sugar alternately with the liquid, mixing well. Among the flavorings that may be used with the above basic recipe are:

Chocolates—Using milk for the liquid and toward the end add 4 squares of melted chocolate.

Spices—Sift the following spices with the sugar: 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon cloves, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg. Use milk for the liquid.

Orange—Use 1 tablespoon lemon juice and the rest orange juice for the liquid.

Lemon—Use 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 2 tablespoons water for the liquid.

If you want a particularly delicious cake try using two frostings instead of one. Bake a plain white or yellow cake and spread caramel frosting between the two layers and on top. Then spread chocolate frosting over the caramel top and on the sides of the cake.

To make caramel frosting: boil 1 1/2 cups granulated sugar, 1/2 cup light brown sugar and 1/4 cup evaporated milk until just below the soft ball fudge test. Add 1 tablespoon butter and 1/2 teaspoon vanilla. Cool, then beat till stiff. Add enough evaporated milk to spread. Chocolate frosting is made in the following way: Break off 2 squares of chocolate and melt over hot water. Stir in 1/2 pound confectioners' sugar (about 2 cups) alternately with enough evaporated milk to moisten. Beat until creamy and smooth and add 1/4 teaspoon vanilla.

Lemon Custard Filling

Put 1/4 pound butter, 1/2 pound sugar and the yolks of 4 eggs in a double boiler. Stir until thick and smooth, take from the fire and add the juice of two lemons and the grated rind of one. Stand aside until cool.

HIGH SCHOOL QUINSET CHALKS UP VICTORY

By Oscar Corn
(H. S. Publicity Representative)
The Bristol High quintet managed to chalk up their first victory, last night, when they came from behind and had a one-point lead over the final Upper Moreland five when the final whistle blew. The final score was 24 to 23, with the Cardinal and Gray Stranglers on the long end.

The game, for the first two quarters, was very slow, and at half time Upper Moreland had piled up a comfortable lead, nine points. In the first quarter, Randall tallied the first point of the game, a foul, and the only one for the home team during that quarter. Rue did Bristol's scoring for the half, when he sunk a double-decker and two fouls.

In the second half Bristol came back fighting, and the game became very rough. Captain Jensen and Randall, of Upper Moreland, were put out on fouls, while Rue of Bristol received this same treatment. Much of this roughness can be accounted for due to the smallness of the court.

Due to the absence of Jensen and Randall, the Stranglers' passing attack began to function and Upper Moreland's lead began to be cut down. When the last period started, Bristol was six points behind.

When the last period opened, Bristol cut the lead to nothing when they scored three field goals in a row and made the score 20 to 20. Dutton immediately gained the lead for the Morelanders by a foul shot. Then Bristol took the lead after a double-decker was made, 22 to 21.

Lear tied the score by a foul shot at 22 to 22, and Taylor once again put Upper Moreland in the lead by a good free throw; score 23 to 22. With only a minute to play, "Reds" Gallagher sunk the winning twin-pointer, which made the score 24 to 23 in favor of Bristol.

The Stranglers' attack in the first half was very poor but they showed some improvement in the second half, after Jensen and Randall were taken out. Their foul shooting was also very poor. They made only four out of 19 tries.

"Reds" Gallagher led the Bristol quintet with a sextet of double-deckers for 12 points, while Sam Randall led the Upper Morelanders with a trio of twin-pointers and a quintet of free throws.

On Friday the Bristol High teams will meet Southampton. This is a league game. There will be dancing after the game, music furnished by the "Fraternity Boys."

FISCHER AND ERNIE DUSEK MEET IN TOP ARENA BOUT

TRENTON, Jan. 10.—With Wednesday night now supplanting Friday as the regular wrestling night at the Arena, Johnny Ipp will present Ernie Dusek, Nebraska wildman, and Eli Fischer, former Rutgers athlete, in the feature two-fall-out-of-three match for his first midweek show tonight.

Both men's records are well known to local fans and a hard and bitter struggle is in prospect. Fischer, moved into the windup spot on the last card, whipped the classy Stan Sokolis in 12 minutes. Prior to that match, Eli pinned Jack Hurley and drew with Ernie's younger brother, Emil Dusek. He is one of the most formidable athletes who ever represented Rutgers on the athletic field, going in for all sports.

Dusek, whose charges and unorthodox tactics have brought him to the fore in the grappling realm, is one of the most dangerous men in the game and will go almost to any length to achieve victory. Fans who saw his two battles here with Al Glecewicz know what a relentless foe he is.

Man Mountain Dean, 306 pound Georgian, will collide with the rowdy Abie Ginsberg in a handicap match. The colossal Dean has agreed to toss Ginsberg in 2 minutes or forfeit the contest. With Ginsberg's ability to dish out plenty of rough stuff his chance to elude Dean for that period seems excellent.

Frank Bronowicz and Kurt Gabriel, two recent winners here, meet in the one fall to a finish semi-windup. Vic Christie, sensational young Californian, faces the Masked Marvel and Firpo Wilcox tangles with Jim Henry.

Authorities say Woodward was on the way to a store at which he was employed at Willow Grove to take an account of stock when he struck the woman. It was very foggy at the time, and Woodward told troopers that he thought at first he had struck a pole. According to his story, he drove up the road a short distance and then returned to investigate, but found no one in the road.

It was through Ralph Ganer, 12 years old, of Hallowsell, that police were able to clear up the case. The boy witnessed the accident and noticed part of the number of the rear license plate. He jotted down the figures and turned them over to Doylestown State Police.

Trooper Joseph Davey and Montgomery County Detective Ira Anderson went to Harrisburg to check over the records of the motor vehicle department and yesterday they picked up Woodward. Police say the headlight, fender and horn on Woodward's car had been broken and some of the damage had been repaired.

In another of the hit-and-run cases Watson Lake, of Buckingham, was recently arrested for running down and killing Ernest Spencer, of Holcoing.
